Dear Marketing Director,

We all know that the image we portray to our customers is highly important when running a successful business. That image needs to be consistent and professional. From the first impression, to long after any transactions have been completed.

The first impression is often in the form of marketing. This marketing could be your letterhead, brochure and/or website. Anything that has your company name on it is a representation of your business, and should convey your business in a complementary way.

Here at Prime Branding we offer a wide array of services to improve the image and marketing of your business. These services include graphic design, printing, photography and websites. We handle projects of all sizes, from complete corporate/product identity to #10 envelopes you send invoices in. As always our prices are competitive, and our quality is superb.

I hope you'll take the time to call and set up a no-obligation consultation to discuss the potential of your companies marketing and future projects. Remember marketing sells your business when you are not there.

Hope to hear from you soon and thank you for your time.
